Planning your garden size

Estimate your growing space and access to sunlight, and your time, energy and resources. If you have little time to spare and little space to garden, try one large pot set beside a sunny window as a container garden for plants. If you have outdoor space but don't want a large garden, choose a sunny area with enough space for one or more raised garden beds of plants. A large in-ground garden of plants can work if you have the space, the resources to prepare and maintain it and sunlight several hours a day.

Make your MENTAL HEALTH a priority

Tuscola Behavioral Health Systems

Talk about mental health. The more normalized conversations become about mental health, the more it will empower people to seek the help they need. More people are now talking about and prioritizing their mental health, just as they would their physical health. Individuals are also embracing self-care to improve their overall well-being. This is critical because when a person takes care of their mental health, their physical and emotional health also improves. Self-care can look different for everyone. Exercise, sleep, and a balanced diet might be the strategy for some, while others might benefit from joining a support group, or seeing a mental health professional. It's important to identify what works best for you.

No one should feel alone in their mental health journey or without resources and support.

The Garden Bug

Lobelia

Matthaeus Lobelius (1538-1616) was a Flemish physician and plant enthusiast. Born in Flanders, he studied at the University of Montpellier and became personal physician first to William, Prince of Orange and later to James I. As a member of the Flemish School of Botany, he wrote a series of major treatises on plants, and authored famous publications for botany students. He is credited with the first attempt to classify plants according to their natural affinities, rather than their medicinal uses. The plant genus Lobelia and the botanical family Lobeliaceae are named after him. - Brenda Weaver
